

Jodie Kaufman CNM, FNP

Jodie met her first midwife while completing a Human Services degree at the University of New Mexico. Her conversation inspired and compelled her to research this ancient and provocative vocation. She found Birthwise Midwifery School in Bridgton, Maine, and graduated in 1998. To integrate the academic portion of the Birthwise program, she attended home births and birth center births in Guatemala, and in New Mexico. Seeking further information and education, she continued on to the University of Southern Maine, and graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) in 2003. She gained experience as a Registered Nurse by working primarily in Labor and Delivery, in addition to Home Visiting Nursing, Travel Nursing and Summer Camp Nurse. While working as an RN, she returned to Frontier Nursing University where she completed my Master's of Science in Nursing (MSN) with a Certificate in Nurse-Midwifery (2009), and a Post-Master's Certificate as a Family Nurse Practitioner (2012). She have completed trainings as a Certified Childbirth Educator, and a Certified Lactation Counselor, and gained enriching experiences while participating in medical missions abroad. She maintains certifications in Neonatal Resuscitation (NRP), and CPR. She is Board Certified with the American Midwifery Certification Board (AMCB), and the American Association of Nurse Practitioners (AANP). She is a member of the American College of Nurse Midwives (ACNM), and the AANP. She is able to provide Full-Scope Health Care and she speaks fluent Spanish. Jodie and her husband Robbie have a beautiful little girl named Clover who was born at home.
